Silver Lining

The phrase “Silver Linings” originated from John Milton’s classic poem Comus, written in 1634.

"Was I deceived? or did a sable cloud/Turn forth her silver lining on the night?"

From that early reference, the term “Silver Lining” is a metaphor for optimism, which means a each and every negative occurrence may have a positive aspect. But how do we illustrate a “silver lining” in art? ISA Art and Design presents Silver Lining, an exhibition exploring eight Indonesian artists using photography as a medium. The participating artists: A. Sebastianus, Andre Wiredja, Alexander Thian, Chaerul Umam, Dilla Djalil Daniel, Hardijanto Budiman, Nico Dharmajungen, and Reza Kutjh each have a very different perspective as to how they view contemporary life through the lens.

The title “Silver Linings” is connecting line for works by the photographers to capture an image using their specific style to deliver contrasting meaning from the initial object. In addition to the contrasting meanings in this exhibition, there is a diversity in the medium, method, equipment and editing processes.

Photographic work is an idea way to capture a moment. It slows one down to enjoy an unhurried snapshot of the artist's ideas and see the different points of view and the specific ways in which an artist thinks. This is in contrast to the experience of scrolling images on social media just for the sake of visual pleasure. Photographic works elevate and give space to individual stories, including narratives and visions presented through artistic and formalistic exploration of the visuals captured by the artists.

Silver Lining combines the works of eight artists to portray their objectives of photography and deliver a contrasting meaning to leave it for the audience to interpret further. Hardijanto Budiman (Hardibudi) is a conceptual contemporary photographer based in Jakarta. He frames mundane traditional cultures in surrealistic imageries and intricate colors; Chaerul Umam is a professional photographer known for his landscape photographs, who combines unexplored nature objects into exotic and breath taking landscape images; Alexander Thian builds impressive techniques and gives photos an illusionary effect while telling a story through his art; Dilla Daniel is a Jakarta based documentary photographer who focuses her works on animals in sanctuary. Nico Dharmajungen is an Indonesia maestro who creates an emotional still life in 35mm film format, with color exploration and camera movement; Alexander Sebastianus is a contemporary artist, ethnographer, and writer known for the art of weaving. He shows the varying forms of becoming a seed and its direction of growth that are in correlation to their surroundings during his forest pilgrimage; Andre Wiredja who mainly works for editorial and advertisement, photographs evocative shots serve to remain us how close we are from the constant beauty that is the sky no matter how it is the situation on the ground; Reza Kutjh is a visual artist based in Yogyakarta who plays with photo fragments made from exploratory analog photography using acid reactions to generate artistic surprises, correlating to his works that concern a sense of collective memory and found objects.

HARDI BUDI

Hardijanto Budiman, aka Hardibudi, is a visual artist based in Jakarta, Indonesia. His works encapsulate the journey of his life. "It is all about the expression of imagination, emotion & experiences of my life." Art wouldn't exist without the ability to actualize ideas, and Hardijanto actualizes his ideas into artwork through photography.

Hardijanto calls his works "Imaginary Story Pictures" and considers himself "The Imaginary Story Teller." Hardijanto's signature style is conceptual contemporary photography, and loves everything about surreal art, giving his works a strong surreal art influence.

A. SEBASTIANUS

A. Sebastianus Hartanto uses experiential ethnographic research as a prominent intertwining mode of existence. Hartanto's works explores the decontextualization of material cultures and how it is perceived, understood, and ritualized in practice. For Hartanto, decolonizing the ontologies of art/kunst, is to reclaim Sani, a way of living which involves offering, service, and search of the unknown. A recreation of pilgrimages, sacred spaces, and woven cloths are products of this practice. The works and experiences of Sani may or may not be archived, documented, or shared. What's left are remnants and evidence of materials that takes place in Sani.

Prior to his comparative art studies, Hartanto was an apprentice for a Javanese master weaver, in East Java. He was awarded the William Daley Award for Excellence in Art History and a Craft Field, 2017 and the Massachusetts College of Art & Design: Fiber Arts Departmental Honors, 2018. He teaches craft practice & theory and design ontologies to Artisans in Java, Bali, and the United States. Hartanto worked for both Museum Tekstil Jakarta and Be Bali-Foundation, and now he's a craft school curricula developer and ethnographer at Rumah Sukkha Citta in Java.

amazing | The Deceitful Planes

#LetMeTellYouAStory

There was a time when I was staring in awe at photos of this building with a tiny plane, right in the middle of the sky! I remember saying to myself: God, it must have been incredibly hard to snap a perfect moment like this! Later there was a photo competition and the winner had shot the same image, standing at the bottom of a flight of stairs with a plane right in the middle of the frame. Again, I was bewildered and utterly impressed. But guess what? The internet exploded, as it turned out the plane in the picture was totally fake. I felt so stupid I wanted to slap myself, therefore I decided to make sure everyone knows the planes in this photo are FAKE FAKE FAKE FAKE FAKE! Ha Ha! 🤔🤔🤔🤔 #fakenews #picsartrules #tokome
