WOMEN IN CONTEMPORARY ART

Jakarta Land presents an exhibition Women in Contemporary Art at WTC3. Contemporary phenomena in art are not merely an aesthetic exploration but are developments from the artist's personal experience influenced by social and cultural influences that build the context of visual representation. Other traditions and cultures form representations, but without realizing it still have a local character or still have roots; in this exhibition, we try to read and see the actualization of traditions from the works of contemporary Indonesian female artists.

The artists have their way of expressing their work and different backgrounds of thought in concepts that return to their traditional or social roots channeled through expression, exploration, and actualization of these things in unique and diverse ways, some of which are through re-imagination. Recording traditions, symbolic meanings and even counter-traditions; In Re-Imagination, the artist tries to present tradition by extracting textual information and creating imaginative-fantasy visuals with more than one visual style. Immerses themselves in artistic exploration through media like Ines Katamsa explores the themes of biology, microbiology and astrophysics also Nidiya Kusmaya explores the intriguing concept of using ancient coal as a black pigment. Luh Gede Gita employs bold colors and composition in a juxtaposing manner. Guided by a deep appreciation of personal emotions and inner experiences, like Nursyifa Salsabila juxtaposing of past and present moments can help convey the temporal context of memories, and Qanissa Aghara assemblages art by collecting and arranging found objects, creating a visual narrative of her memories and experiences.

The practice of an artist's work finds its momentum of plurality, whether style, technique, choice of material, or aesthetic concepts or aesthetic concepts—many artists caused by the intersection of the complexities of social and cultural conditions. Perspectives, choices, awareness give birth to works that emphasize efforts as a bridge between people's diversity; build a dialogue with the flavours of life around him. In this exhibition, we try to see self-actualization and reinterpret the position of women differently.

Ines Katamso

Ines Katamso is a French-Indonesian painter based in Bali. After studying art and design in France, Ines was drawn back to her homeland, where she currently works as an artist and visual designer under her studio named Atelier Seni. Upon returning to the island, she began her artistic journey creating commission murals before gradually transitioning, to more intimate scales and subject-matter. Through her artworks, Ines explores the themes of biology, microbiology and astrophysics. She is also focusing on pushing her art-making mediums to be environmentally sustainable, from her choices of materials in frames, exploring paper cutting to splicing aside from just painting. Ines' paintings depict abstract and organic microscopic objects that are fragile but essential to our life, intentionally blown up in proportion to be larger-than-life, reminding us of the importance of these microscopic mechanisms that exist in ourselves as a unit of nature.

Luh Gede Sangita Yasa

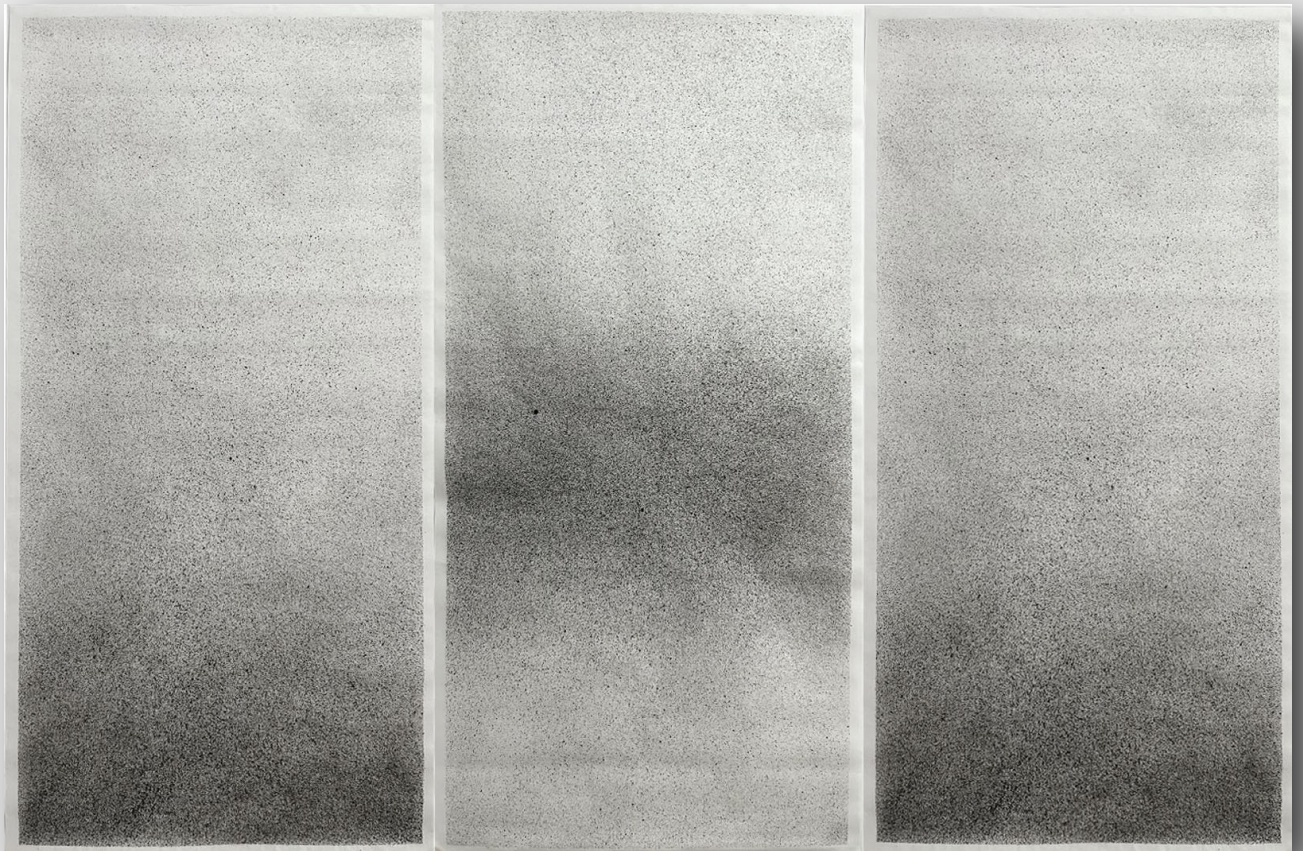

Luh Gede Sangita Yasa (b. 1998) or Luh'De is a Bali based Artist that often employs bold colours and compositions in a juxtaposition manner. She majored in Fine Arts at the Institut Teknologi Bandung in Indonesia, and works primarily with oils. Her process begins by drawing from her memories and choosing which to retrieve and vividly recall, and in effect, which to forget. Incorporating her identity as a Balinese, she admits that while the ubiquitous exoticizing of Bali triggers a sense of unease in her, she simultaneously does not want to detach herself completely from her home—choosing instead to borrow ideas of the 'paradise' it provides, and make it her own. "Painting makes me understand myself more, that maybe I desire control over things that I cannot control, blurring the realities between the one we live in and the tempting-limitless world of cyberspace. And I find peace by being in between that. The white spaces in my paintings are simply the interlude like in music albums – a transitional moment to catch a breath from what's going on visually; a language of balancing things. The idea of the past, present, future and other realities has become my number one interest."
